Epistemic Authority Zagzebski

Akrasia (/ ə ' k r eɪ z i ə /; Greek ἀκρασία, "lacking command"), occasionally transliterated as acrasia or Anglicised as acrazy or acracy, is described as a lack of self-control or the state of acting against one's better judgment. The adjectival form is "akratic".

Akrasia - Wikipedia

1. All after-the-fact correction of deliberate moral evil (not sins of ignorance) is punishment (i.e. suffering). From the simplest, mildest rebuke ("what you did was wrong, and good people do NOT do such things, Junior"), with its perceived 'attack' and its (hopefully) consequent shame-leading-to-change, to simple spankings, groundings, restricted privileges, to an F on an exam for ...

Why can't God just forgive sin, instead of demanding justice?

Free will is the ability to choose between different possible courses of action unimpeded.. Free will is closely linked [by whom?] to the concepts of responsibility, praise, guilt, sin, and other judgements which apply only to actions that are freely chosen. It is also connected with the concepts of advice, persuasion, deliberation, and prohibition. ...
